There will be free admission to FIU's season finale against North Texas in the Orange Bowl this Saturday, which is also the last college football game to be played at the Orange Bowl.

In lieu of purchasing tickets to the game, fans will be encouraged to bring a canned good or unwrapped toy for donation and will be admitted at no charge.

"Officials at the City of Miami have had the courtesy of waiving fees that make it possible for us to accept donations of toys and food instead of tickets at the gates," FIU Athletic Director Pete Garcia said. "The players, the fans and indeed the entire community can feel good about this game, and reminisce about the golden years at the Orange Bowl. We will have student-athletes collecting the toys and food donations at the gates."

FIU athletes will deliver the new unwrapped toys to Amigos for Kids and canned food will go to The Daily Bread Food Bank.
